

Contents

Acknowledgements .....	iii
Chapter 1 Introduction .....	1
1.1 Iron and the production process .....	2
1.2 The archaeological sources: problems and potential.....	5
1.3 Technological innovation and social context.....	6
1.4 Notes on the structure of the book .....	8
Chapter 2 The Near East .....	10
2.1 Evidence from textual sources during the 2nd millennium BC.....	11
2.2 Earlier archaeological evidence (ca. 20th – 13th century BC).....	25
2.3 Later archaeological evidence (ca. 13th – 10th century BC).....	30
2.4 Discussion and conclusions .....	43
Chapter 3 Cyprus .....	55
3.1 Iron in Late Cypriot IIIA .....	57
3.2 Iron in Late Cypriot IIIB .....	62
3.3 Iron in Cypro-Geometric I.....	64
3.4 Discussion and conclusions .....	66
Chapter 4 The Aegean .....	70
4.1 Iron before 1200 BC .....	70
4.2 The 12th and the first half of the 11th century BC .....	75
4.3 The second half of the 11th and the early 10th century BC.....	85
4.4 The 10th century BC.....	99
4.5 Discussion and conclusions .....	107
Chapter 5 The eastern Balkan Peninsula .....	113
5.1 Knobbed, fluted and stamped pottery .....	113
5.2 Selected early iron artefacts.....	115
5.3 Discussion and conclusions .....	122
Chapter 6 The area north of the Black Sea .....	128
6.1 The Bilozerka culture .....	130
6.2 The Hordiivka cemetery.....	133
6.3 Cultures between the Dnister and the Carpathians.....	135
6.4 The Chernoles and Bondarikha cultures of the forest steppe.....	138
6.5 Discussion and conclusions .....	138
Chapter 7 The Caucasus .....	143
7.1 South of the Caucasus.....	143
7.2 North of the Caucasus .....	157
Chapter 8 The central and western Balkan Peninsula .....	172
8.1 Albania, Dalmatia and Istria .....	172
8.2 Slovenia .....	174
8.3 Bosnia-Herzegovina and central and northern Croatia .....	177
8.4 The central Balkans.....	178
8.5 Bronze and iron in hoard depositions.....	181
8.6 Bronze and iron in the manufacture of swords, dirks and daggers.....	184
8.7 Discussion and conclusions .....	187

Chapter 9 The Carpathian Basin and the wider European context of the introduction of iron .....	189
9.1 Notes on early iron in Transylvania and the Banat .....	189
9.2 The earliest iron in the Carpathian Basin and the area north of the Alps .....	196
9.3 Iron in the late Urnfield period: utilitarian implements and status symbols .....	201
9.4 Hoard deposition in the Carpathian Basin and the Bronze/Iron transition .....	204
9.5 Crisis and system collapse in the Carpathian Basin .....	210
9.6 The demise of the Standard Bronze value system .....	214
9.7 Discussion and conclusions .....	220
Chapter 10 Italy .....	228
10.1 Southern Italy .....	229
10.2 Sicily .....	233
10.3 Sardinia .....	234
10.4 Central Italy .....	236
10.5 Northern Italy .....	237
10.6 Discussion and conclusions .....	238
Chapter 11 The Iberian Peninsula and the Balearic Islands .....	244
11.1 The Villena Treasure .....	244
11.2 Phoenician traders and the first colonial foundations .....	245
11.3 The introduction of iron in Portugal .....	246
11.4 The introduction of iron in Spain .....	254
11.5 Discussion and conclusions .....	258
Chapter 12 Conclusions .....	260
12.1 Frequently occurring forms of artefacts during the early stages of the adoption of iron .....	260
12.2 Summary of the main trends in the introduction of iron .....	268
12.3 Iron and the Iron Age .....	285
12.4 Concluding remarks and perspectives for future research .....	301
Bibliography .....	307